

Get your lawns and gardens ready for spring

With spring just around the corner, now is the best time to control bindii, prevent the formation of seed heads and the spread of weeds.

While different grasses require different treatments, your best bet is to come and talk to our specialists about which weed control is most suitable.

There are two types of herbicides: selective, which remove some plant types and leave others unaffected and non-selective, which kill every plant they contact.

The tricky thing about bindii and weeds is they are excellent at surviving and reproducing.

Tips to beat them include: keeping the lawn in good condition; removing seed heads from weeds; digging them out or pulling them out by hand; mulching (to smother weeds and prevent germination); and using herbicides.

When using herbicides make sure you read instructions, carefully measure the area to be covered and keep chemical mixes free of soil or dirt.

The winners of our winter oil promotion were Bruce Trotter and Garry Burnes. We hope you enjoy your $100 StarCash cards.
